Heart of Emory

The Heart of Emory is awarded to six (6) individuals, three (3) undergraduates and three (3) graduates, who are active, passionate contributors to the Emory community. They go beyond simply working with the communities around them by advocating for progress and social justice in their roles. They represent the motto of Emory, “the wise heart seeks knowledge,” by engaging in critical inquiry, cultural humility, and a dedication to pursuing a life of courageous integrity. These six individuals represent what makes Emory worth ‘hailing the gold and blue.’

Scoring Rubric

To what extent is the individual an active contributor to the Emory community? Consider the level of engagement and involvement demonstrated by the individual within the Emory community.

To what extent does the individual advocate for progress and social justice in their roles? Evaluate the effectiveness and commitment of the individual in advocating for positive change and social justice.

To what extent does the individual represent the Emory motto, “the wise heart seeks knowledge”? Assess how well the individual embodies the values of seeking knowledge, demonstrating critical inquiry, and cultural humility.

To what extent does the individual dedicate themselves to pursuing a life of courageous integrity? Evaluate the individual's commitment to ethical principles and courageous integrity in their actions and decisions.

To what extent does the individual contribute to the holistic representation of what makes Emory special? Consider how the individual's contributions reflect and enhance the unique qualities that make Emory worth celebrating.

To what extent does the individual demonstrate cultural humility in their engagement? Assess the individual's ability to approach diverse perspectives with humility and openness.
